Dr. Edward Parker

When Dr. Parker is confronted with decisions concerning Highland, his loyalty stands out above all others. His intelligence is respected throughout the community and when speaking to others about education he shares with them the pride that Highland has earned. On a student-administrator basis, Dr. Parker cares. He showed us his concern when he initiated his own mini-course, "Rapping with the principal." A figure to watch and remember — Edward Parker.

"It looks to me like we are having a "swinging back" to the kind of students that I have always been proud to say come from Highland High School. We have always had outstanding students but this year
there seems to be a whole student body of this type. This year's student body and their student leadership is really the "greatest"
and makes my work
very rewarding."

Mr. Lawrence Palmer

"It has been exciting for me to work with the students, faculty and administration of Highland. We have all tried to work together to make this one of Highland's best years.
I am constantly pleased at the way
many students have accepted the challenge of leadership and the way the faculty has endeavored to prepare you, the student, for the future."

Dr. Robert DeVries

Counselors

Myrth Harvey

"The caliber of Highland's students is continually becoming more impressive. I have enjoyed working with students who are interested in improving themselves and the future. Highland is a high-class school with a first rate student-body."

Joe Johnsen

"Highland is the greatest. A trite expression but true. Working with Highland students is a very challenging and rewarding experience. Past records indicate the excellency and versatility of the studentbody. This does not mean, however, that problems do not exist, but with everyone working together to maintain the highest quality we can keep them to a minimum."

Hal Hardcastle

"We are constantly being indoctrinated as to the rights of the individual. Let's not overlook the rights of the group . . . I'm Ramish On Highland."

Gladys Walz

"Students seem to be more purposeful this year; more interested in Highland, and have been serious about making places for the future. Many have visited the Career Guidance Center to explore opportunities for work and to start making decisions on vocational choices. The students are alive at Highland."

Board of Education

It's hard for us to say exactly what the Board of Education does. Prior to elections candidates for the Board are more than happy about nebulous terms such as "meaningful learning experiences." But, school is still seven hours long and there are more T.V.'s in a classroom than teachers.

PTSA

A generous contribution of 50¢ bought us a ticket to the movie, "Charlie." Although this was not the purpose behind it . . . we are indebted to the PTSA for continually backing the Highland student-body.

Office Secretaries

The backbone of the administration . . . responsible for part of the student-body delinquency often unseen by the faculty. Well equipped with pink slips, counselor appointments, schedules, and the ever faithful check-in list. Our office secretaries get the job done with efficiency, accuracy, and good rapport with the studentbody.

When it comes to satisfying appetites, Highland's own kitchen cooks really take the cake. The fruit of their labor is greatly appreciated, especially after a few sack lunches from home. Educated in nutritional and economical balances, this noble legion of dieticians dedicated themselves to the sole purpose of prime nutrition for the leaders of tomorrow . . . at a price we could all afford. Thanks to our own kitchen cooks . . . in the Highland High cafeteria, raw deals are rare!

Matrons

Highlands interior decorators . . . working diligently at wiping off, filling up, washing away, and flushing down traces of our sometimes careless behavior. Becoming involved in one of Highland's less desirable activities, these women often go a little unnoticed, but always appreciated for having been there.

Building Engineers

These men probably know Highland better than any of us. They pick up love notes, read various obscenities in the lavatory, laugh at the forgotten articles, and marvel at deserted classrooms left in mass confusion. An important element can be gained through the example of these fine men — taking pride in their work.

Cheerleaders

Todd Ogaard — Head Cheerleader

Somehow "Enid" sensed the spirit of the Highland studentbody in a deeper context. He could look past the bleachers into our faces and really bring out our school loyalty. Always cracking that needed joke, Todd brought the cheerleader role down to earth.

Martsie Earl

If ever there was a born "Highlander" it would have to be Marts. Nothing, absolutely, nothing, can lock up her persuasive happiness. She has the guts to get lost in every possible emotion. To watch Martsie is to love her, to laugh with her, and to care with her.

Paul Young

That honest face — Paul Young. As a junior, he earned the respect of the studentbody by keeping the rest of the cheerleaders straight. An optimist by nature, Paul made positive thinking believable. He gave the Rams an extra shot in the arm.

Becky Hammond

Becky's familiar smile always seemed to make us welcome. She faced the games with a double enthusiasm for a second year. Sometimes it's awkward to stand up and cheer, but when Hammond looked up at us everything became so natural. Becky gave Highland all her energy.

Dave Croft

Dave was our little muscle man who carried his share of responsibility wherever he went. He sensed the importance of seeking out others and applied it on the field as well as in a quiet conversation. Close your eyes and remember the cad-diness of Croft.

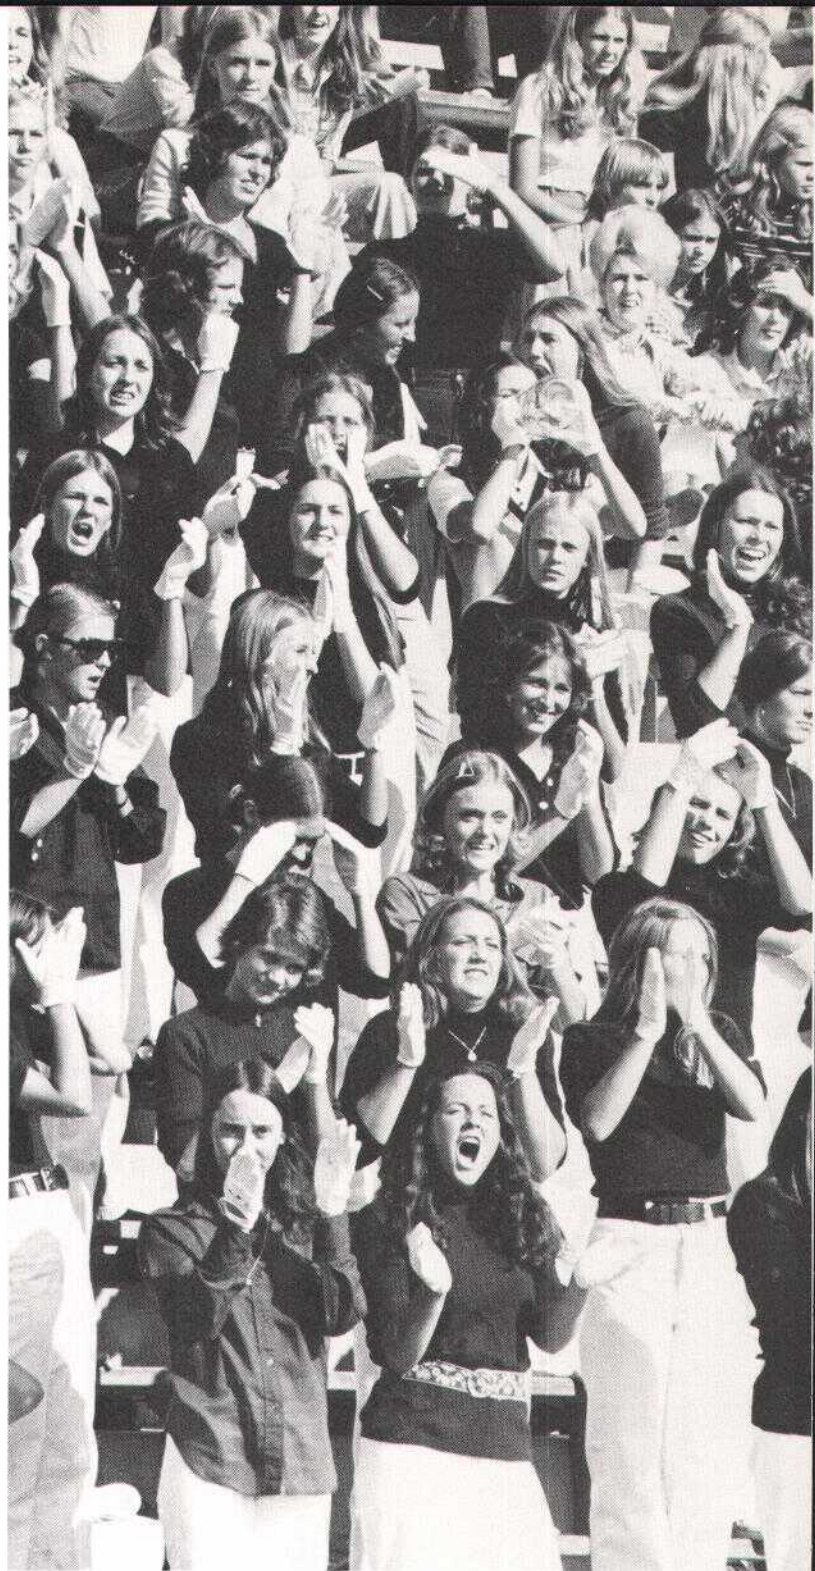

Terese Williams

Adding the childish spark to Highland, Terese fulfilled the little girl excitement of having a good time. She automatically left a strong impression on all those she came in contact with. Whether it was singing the school song, cheering at a game or freaking East, Terese stood out.

Reading, Writing and Arithmetic have found their places in the hearts of these scholars. It has also placed them on the honor roll since "early childhood." Mother's baby deserves a pat on the back.

Roberta Landivar from Bolivia and Marisol Valenzuela from Peru had always wanted to come to America. When the Foreign Exchange Program gave them the chance, they were quick to take it. Both were apprehensive at first, but the new culture of America and the fresh experience of life at Highland gave them new challenges and friends. These people told us a lot about ourselves. Marisol found that although people are different, they share the same feelings, and Roberto discovered how in Bolivia, people work to live; in America, people live to work.

A Cappella

The graduating class of "tay-tahs" found a new light to music this year. In our process of singing we "stomped our feet" and learned that "Ezekiel saw the wheel" "within our dwelling place." A Cappella opened so many doors for us but mainly an appreciation of a universal language . . . music.

Working together to maintain a reputation of musical perfection and a lot of good times, the Highland High Madrigals caroled with enthusiasm through the winter snows of Christmas and the lazy days of spring. They brought joy to others and a sense of satisfaction to themselves as well as their dedicated director who made each rehearsal well worth while.

With a style and distinction all their own, the Jazz Ensemble added an exciting and unique flavor to Highland's music department this year. Composed of first rate musicians with the desire to achieve, the Jazz Ensemble made their name great.

With a variety of musical composers and selections, Highland's own Wind Ensemble was both entertaining and impressive. Educated and sensitive musicians along with a likeable conductor, made their music a success.

With a quality of excellence rare among high school orchestras, Highland's has reached an all time high. Their ability to learn and perform great orchestral music is due largely to the calibre of musicians and the efforts of their conductor.

Stage Band

The Highland High Stage Band is largely composed of the studentbody's greatest swingers. With their yearly rendezvous to Reno and many of the nearby "Hot Spots" in town, the stage band maintained its steady reputation of great music, and its often unspoken one of really having a good time!

Highland's capable secretaries of tomorrow meet together once a month to improve their skills and learn about the opportunities offered them.

Expression in movement — the Highland Dance Club is a portrait of color. Experimenting with space these girls put their own interpretations of music into an anthology of dancers. These girls found meaning "In Company of Dance."

In the game of expression

We make our own rules

Some see high school
as a testing ground for emotions;
A few as just a place to cheer;
Others find it packaged in "irrelevancies."
Again, some say, the answer lies in periodic visits home.

we can win

or we can lose

In the way of an onrush of sagebrush,
I plucked it out:
A textbook (third grade)
that told the story of my recent conversion to the philosophy of numbness.

It told about how the rain fell — evaporated — and fell again.

in either case -
it's ours to play.
